- Massachusetts is a member state and a signatory of the NASDTEC Interstate Agreement, which facilitates the transfer of educator licensure between member states, not necessarily immediate reciprocity. Depending on your professional goals, where you plan to seek licensure or employment, and the licensure structures that exist within that state, there are diverse pathways to licensure that may be relevant and some may require additional coursework, required tests, assessments, and/or classroom experiences.
  - To research the requirements for educator licensure for the state in which you intend to seek licensure, visit the NASDTEC website at <https://www.nasdtec.net/page/Interstate> or the National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreements (NC-SARA) website at <https://www.nc-sara.org/resource-directories-and-guides> for contact information and website links. We advise you to become familiar with and understand the state requirements for educator licensure for the state in which you intend to seek licensure or seek employment.
- Per the NASDTEC website: “The NASDTEC Interstate Agreement facilitates the mobility of educators among the states and other jurisdictions that are members of NASDTEC and have signed the Agreement. Although there may be conditions applicable to individual jurisdictions, the Agreement makes it possible for an educator who completed an approved program and/or who holds a certificate or license in one jurisdiction to earn a certificate or license in another state or jurisdiction.”
- See this New York Department of Education website for licensure information:
<http://www.highered.nysed.gov/tcert/certificate/teachrecother.html>
  - The New York Department of Education website states that eligibility of licensure applicants from other states, including those who complete teacher programs at a college or university in another state, cannot be determined until an application has been submitted and a review of applicant credentials has been completed. In addition, New York requires that applicants from other states complete an educator program that is comparable to a New York State-registered teacher preparation program completed at a New York state college or university based on the Department’s review and may require licensure applicants to be assessed through an individual evaluation, which requires completion of college coursework aligned to the license competencies. Applicants who intend to pursue educator licensure in New York are strongly encouraged to explore the requirements specific to the license sought.

C. Lesley University has determined that our Education Programs specified in the tables in Section A do not meet the current educational requirements for comparable licensure/certification in the states following states: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, Oregon, Texas.

- While these states are NASDTEC members, they require licensure applicants to have completed a Massachusetts approved program and hold the associated Initial Massachusetts license prior to being eligible to apply in that state.
  - To research the requirements for educator licensure for the state in which you intend to seek licensure or employment, visit the NASDTEC website at <https://www.nasdtec.net/page/Interstate> or the National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreements (NC-SARA) website at <https://www.nc-sara.org/resource-directories-and-guides> for contact information and website

Periodic Review of Licensure Regulations and Moving to a New State

It is important for all applicants and students to understand the specific requirements of the state in which they intend to apply for licensure or seek employment, and to periodically review the requirements in order to be aware of any future changes to those requirements. If a student’s plans for where they intend to seek employment change, they must become aware of the requirements for licensure for the new state.

Throughout the Program, students are required to keep the University informed of any changes in their location (state) via the Address Change Form available on the Registrar’s Office webpage.
